Statement of Candidacy FASFAA President-Elect:

I greatly appreciate the nomination from my peers to run for the position of FASFAA President-Elect. I have been an aid officer for the past 22 years at the University of South Florida. As financial aid professionals, one of our jobs is to help our students realize the dream of higher education. Being able to provide support and partnership to schools as they assist both traditional and non-traditional students is a privilege that cannot be taken for granted. In my current position at USF, I am responsible for a vast amount of services, including management of our financial education office as well as document intake and outreach for the main financial aid office. I have served on numerous committees and presented at FASFAA, SASFAA and NASFAA.

During this time, I have realized that there is always something we can learn in the financial aid profession. I see FASFAA as both a teaching and learning organization. Our shared experiences provide us with a breadth and knowledge that is often unsurpassed. Financial aid touches so many different areas of our institutions, I think we sometimes forget just how much we know because it's "part of the job" to know everything about our campuses. I also believe in the power of being successful through partnerships. The adage, "two heads are better than one" is appropriate and applies to the work FASFAA does to ensure there is collaboration in its training and outreach efforts. Our strength as a profession lies with our ability to work with others from all areas. FAAs are the best lemonade makers in the world!

FASFAA must also be a strong partner with SASFAA and NASFAA in advocating for financial aid programs at the state and federal levels. We all have personal stories we can share of students whose lives have been affected by the financial aid they received or did not receive. As we are all members of a helping profession, I believe our roles representing you on the board is to provide support our members by providing an open and inclusive environment.

I also volunteered my time to serve as an advisor to the students of the USF chapter of Enactus, mentoring over 150 students that created educational outreach projects to better the lives of others in the community. One of the team's lasting projects, the "Suit-A-Bull" lending store provides suits to students free of charge for interviews and professional events. The team has been nationally recognized as has won 28 awards from 2005-2019.

I am fully committed to the duties and responsibilities of this position. I also extend my appreciation to my supervisor, staff and institution for their support. It is an honor to work with such dedicated professionals. I am resolved to do everything possible to help each member as well as contribute to the success of FASFAA's goals to develop and maintain professional standards of financial aid administration, to promote cooperation and communication among its members, and to promote and endorse student financial aid programs that are consistent with good professional practice. Thank you.
